An i - dle fly flew gli - ding by to a - light on the web of a spi - der.

The spi - der spied her and sid - led be - side her with her fi - ber to brid - le the fly.

When she sigh - ted the spi - der the fly tried to fight her but the more she de - fied her the tight - er she tied her till such was her plight that des - pite her best fight, the spi - der'd just wind her and bind her. —

At — last she re - spired to bite her fly and to spit her bile - spit - tle — in - side her, and bide be - side her, strad - dled a - stride her, to si - phon out all her fly - ci - der.
